City Freeway Project To Consume 290 Properties For Right-Of-Way

By ROBERT POPP

When the walls have finished falling in West End and California Hollow to make way for the new freeway, it will make the Biblical Battle of Jericho seem like a small-scale operation, by comparison.

The short stretch of four-lane highway and a massive interchange in the congested heart of West End involve a total of 290 pieces of property, including such landmarks as the 50-year-old Anderson Methodist Church on W. 9th St. and industries such as the Ceramic Specialties Co. near City Hospital, employing about 80.

NEGOTIATORS FOR the State Highway Department had completed arrangements by Thursday to acquire 170 of the 290 properties. But not all represent homes or business places. Many are vacant lots, particularly in the California Hollow area.

According to one state estimate, about 160 homes will be cleared from the right-of-way from the city limits in California Hollow through West End to W. 3rd and Monroe Sts. In addition, it will eliminate two service stations, a beer distributor's warehouse, three neighborhood groceries, a lumber yard, a junk yard, a trucking firm and a trailer camp.

Because the state is offering homes and other buildings for resale in lots of 30 to 35 as negotiations are completed with the owners, some of the structures already have been torn down, others are in the process of being razed and negotiations are continuing for other properties.

TWO OF THE most familiar—and important—landmarks scheduled for destruction are the Anderson church and Ceramic Specialties Co. (Turn to Page 2, Column 1)

TWO LIFETIME RESIDENTS of Chestnut St. talk about their neighborhood as homes fall under the wreckers' hammers to clear the right-of-way for the proposed expressway from the California Hollow city limits to W. 3rd and Monroe Sts. Miss Helen Capehart, left, and Mrs. Mayne Deshler, whose combined residence totals well over 100 years, are preparing to move from their homes. In the background, one home has been cleared, raising virtually is finished on another and the two-story frame has been vacated, awaiting start of demolition.

Hancock May Have To Pare County Funds

School's Need Will Cut $48,000 From Government Money

The problem of assuring enough money for schools without making severe cuts in the county government budget will face Hancock County Commissioners Tuesday.

Unless the county is excused from complying with a new law passed by the last session of the West Virginia State Legislature, the solution doesn't appear to be an easy one, commissioners may find when they convene in New Cumberland to adopt the county budget for fiscal 1960-61.

The problem appears to have developed from the assessments for 1960 - 61 released today by County Assessor Edward L. Supplee.

The county assessment total is $105,668,253 for 1960, an increase of $854,380 over last year's $104,813,873.

An overall increase is made to appear less significant by the fact that the increases came in the low-paying brackets and the higher brackets showed decreases, the assessor notes.

As the new assessment figures are not up to the 50 per cent level required by the legislature, the Hancock County Board of Education has authority under the new law to appropriate for itself a big share of funds normally going to County Court for operating county offices.

This means that county commissioners face the possibility of having to cut the county budget by $48,000, the figure designated by Supp. Robert H. Hall as that necessary to provide needed revenue for the county school system.

County assessors and county courts were put in the middle under the new law which became effective May 10.

The key provision is that they must see to it that property is assessed at half its appraised value and that school boards have enough taxing power, if need be, to raise school money to what is called for under state aid law. The assessments do not come to the 50 per cent level, according to Supplee, and commissioners thus may have to slash their budget by

Ships Tossed Like Toys

Tropical Storm Tears East Coast

By The Associated Press

A tropical storm pounded the East Coast today, tossing ships like toys in a bathtub and spreading torrential rain over a wide area. In the Midwest, a squall line buffeted an area from Michigan to Oklahoma with heavy rains and winds up to 100 miles an hour.

Gale warnings were posted from Charleston, S.C., to Cape May, N.J. as Tropical Storm Brenda moved up the East Coast, pushing its turbulence into southern New England.

At least two vessels were in trouble. The 251-foot freighter Vermont ran aground southwest of Charleston during a heavy rain squall. Winds drove the salvage ship Big Wig ashore near the Virginia-North Carolina border.

The Weather Bureau forecast local floods from Brenda's downpour up to 100 miles inland. Tampa, Fla., already was swamped with 13.92 inches of rain. Charleston was drenched with 6.13 inches.

The Midwestern squall line clung to the front of a cold front moving southeastward out of Canada. At Will Rogers Field in Oklahoma City, 100 m.p.h. winds damaged several planes on the ground. A farmhouse west of Oklahoma City was destroyed by winds in a thunderstorm that dropped heavy rains.

Muskegon, Mich., reported half-inch hail and heavy rains with winds up to 77 miles an hour. Wind gusts up to 70 miles an hour were clocked near Chicago.

Showers also dampened scattered areas of the West, but more hot weather was the prospect for inland areas. The advancing cold front should lower temperatures comfortably in the Northern Plains and upper Great Lakes.

Ohio Delegates Did Work Behind Scenes, Not On TV

By DUANE E. CROFT

Review Staff Correspondent
 COLUMBUS—Where was Ohio at the national conventions?

That's the question in the minds of a lot of home folk who "attended" the Republican and Democratic conclaves with the aid of their television sets.

After sitting up past their normal bedtime for the better part of two weeks to catch everything that came across the airwaves, they express a bit of disappointment that their delegations didn't make more of a splash before the cameras of the nationwide networks.

While delegates from other places between the oceans and the prairies seemed to have no trouble getting into the act, it was hard to tell Ohioans were there except when the TV cameras happened to pass by the state's standards as they "panned" the big convention halls.

THIS SEEMED paradoxical, since Ohio is considered a key state in the national political picture and sent big blocks of votes to the conventions — 64 to the Democratic and 56 to the Republican.

Well, there is an explanation, and it is paradoxical, too. What Ohio's political leaders on both sides considered a blessing turned out to be a curse as far as television coverage was concerned.

The blessing was that both the Democratic and Republican delegations from Ohio were unified in their support of the ultimate winners of the presidential nominations.

This gave the Ohio delegations considerably more influence than they would have had if they had been split into opposing factions. But it is an influence more likely to be felt later than during the conventions.

A CONVENTION is a time for maneuvering, for putting the finishing touches on a long, hard drive toward victory. A candidate who is lining up support for his nomination, his platform and his vice presidential choice has to concentrate on wooing the undecided and invading the camp of the enemy.

In a convention of three or four days, he isn't apt to have time left for more than courtesy visits to the delegations he knows he has in his pocket. That is what makes the solidly pledged blocks valuable to him — he knows he can count on them while he turns his attention where it is more urgently needed to bring him the big prize.

By the same token, it was the wooing of the undecided and the

Ex-Area Man Facing Arson In Barn Blaze

$12,000 Loss Seen In Fire On Farm In Hanoverton Vicinity

A former East Liverpool district man faces a charge of arson in connection with a blaze that destroyed a barn and a number of animals Friday night about 6:30 on the Harry Speidel farm on Route 30 three miles east of Hanoverton.

Sheriff Russell J. VanFossan said Robert Custer Leslie, 20, of Tuscarawas admitted starting the blaze. He is held in the County Jail. The loss was estimated between $12,000 and $14,000.

Eight pigs, a ram, a dog and tools were lost.

Leslie who formerly lived near Grimms Bridge, has been staying with his brother. He was walking home and stopped at the Speidel farm for water. No one was home so he went on the back porch and started a fire in a toolshed and then set the barn ablaze, the sheriff said.

A neighbor, George Howard, saw the smoke and ran over to the Speidel farm. He put out the fire in the toolshed off the porch, but the fire in the barn was out of control.

Firemen from Hanoverton and Guilford and the Winona tank truck responded but the barn burned to the ground, along with the animals.

Speidel said his loss is partially covered by insurance. Sheriff VanFossan said George Boston of Washingtonville, state deputy fire marshal, was called and will make an investigation, along with an arson investigator.

Leslie was picked up by Deputy James Gause, who noticed the suspect at the fire and knew he was a stranger in the vicinity. He was taken to the jail at Lisbon and questioned and then confessed.

Mayor Rests At Home From Pains In Chest

Mayor Bert H. Goodballet is resting today at his home on Martin St. after suffering chest pains while at his desk at City Hall about 2:45 p. m. Friday.

The mayor was taken to an East End physician's office in a police cruiser for examination and treatment and then advised to go to his home to rest. The physician termed the pains angina and said they were in the left chest in the region of the heart, but not necessarily caused directly by heart trouble. He said the mayor's condition is "good."

Mayor Goodballet took office Jan. 1. He was hospitalized a few days at the outset of his term with an illness diagnosed as a digestive upset and influenza.

Petitions Are Filed

Income Tax Group Bids For Ballot Spot With 1,000 Signers

City Auditor To Check On Signatures

Election Board Will Get Question In 10 Days If Found Valid

An independent citizens' committee filed petitions today with City Auditor Lawrence C. Applegate asking a ballot place to allow East Liverpool to vote for the third time in three years on a proposed municipal income tax.

The petitions carried 1,002 signatures. A minimum of 876 is required, representing 10 per cent of the vote cast for governor in East Liverpool in the last preceding general election of state officers.

Atty. Richard Clark, counsel for the committee, submitted the petitions at 11:30.

State law requires the auditor to hold the petitions 10 days for public inspection, meanwhile determining if there are enough valid signatures to warrant a ballot place. Then, if he finds the petitions meet legal requirements, he will certify the question to the Election Board for a place on the fall ballot, Aug. 10 at 4 p. m. is the deadline for the auditor to make the certification.

The move for a new vote on an income tax was launched July 21 by a citizens' group headed by Thomas Doland, Orchard Grove Ave. insurance agent. The group had hoped to file the petitions by Friday afternoon, if possible, but decided to wait until today while it put on a last-minute drive for additional signatures.

Patterned almost exactly after two other ordinances that were repealed at the polls, the new measure would provide for a tax of 80 cents on each $100 of earnings, business profits and other income.

5 Hurt When 2 Cars Collide

Patrol Cites Woman For Calcutta Wreck

Five were injured, none seriously, in the crash of cars driven by an East Palestine woman and a Weirton man early today on Route 170 near Calcutta. They were treated by City Hospital and released.

The Lisbon State Highway Patrol said the car of Ila Fay Grimm, 27, of 158 E. Martin St., East Palestine veered left of center and struck the car operated by Leonard Brown Jr., 34.

Three passengers in Brown's auto were injured in the crash at about 1 a. m., 2.2 miles north of State Route 30.

Mrs. Grimm, who was driving north, suffered bruises of the left arm and abrasions of the left knee. Brown, who was driving south, received abrasions of the left knee, elbow and contusions of the right hand.

Passengers in the Weirton man's car who were injured included Edward Young, 24, of Weirton, abrasions of the right leg and sprain of the right knee; George Gilchrist, 42, of Weirton, contusions and lacerations of the left eye, and Ruth Freeman, 34, Steubenville, bruised left leg.

When Congress Returns

Kennedy, Johnson Press Multi-Billion Program

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—

Sens. John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, the Democratic presidential and vice presidential nominees, agreed today to press a wide-scale multibillion-dollar legislative program in the Congress session beginning Aug. 8 and to appeal for bipartisan support for it.

"The American people will be quick to spot obstructionist tactics aimed at keeping us from enacting much of this legislation," Kennedy told a news conference in a statement in which Johnson also joined.

They noted the session is expected to last only three weeks and indicated they will simply have to check and see how much really can be done. Johnson and Kennedy disclosed they had considered at length a proposal to seek a big new appropriation for defense purposes, which has been suggested as a jarring answer to insults by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Kennedy said a decision on whether to press this proposal in the short Congress session was held in abeyance until he and Johnson can learn how much defense money already appropriated has been "impounded" by the Eisenhower administration.

Johnson made public a letter he addressed Thursday to Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates Jr. asking for such a report.

The letter, sternly phrased, asked Gates to report on how fully defense funds are being used and to report also on what steps have been taken or are planned to eliminate "wasteful" practices at the Pentagon.

Kennedy told a jam-packed news conference at the summer home of his father that he and Johnson sat up late discussing the legislative program for the hotly-tailed August session of Congress.

"The agenda is long," Kennedy said. "The unfinished business covers a wide range of fields, all of them of key importance to the American people."

"There are such key issues already on the calendar (the Senate calendar of bills awaiting action) as medical care for the aged, housing, aid to education, mutual security appropriations, and minimum wage legislation."

"We intend to devote our full energies to the enactment of this program, and we will leave our principal campaigning until the end of the session. We hope to have the cooperation of the Republicans and their candidate."

Kennedy said the points outlined do not represent the whole program planned.

He said he is in contact with the House Agriculture Committee exploring what farm legislation it might be possible to enact.

He said he also would contact the chairmen of various committees to explore whether there is any possibility of enacting civil rights legislation.

Johnson said he expects Congress to meet six days a week.

Police Submit Request For Work Week Vote

Petitions seeking a place on the Nov. 8 ballot for an initiative ordinance to reduce the work week of Wellsville policemen were filed at 9:38 a. m. today with Auditor Edgar S. Davidson.

Police now work six 8-hour days. Davidson said the petitions contain about 319 names. Listed as the petitioners are Capt. Pete Trainer, Patrolman Edwin James, Patrolman Joseph Heiney and Glenn Mathes, head of the Fraternal Order of Police Associates Lodge.

Davidson is required to hold the petitions 10 days for public inspection and also to determine whether they have sufficient valid signatures for a ballot place.

A total of 265 names are needed for the proposal to be certified to the Columbiana County Board of Elections. This represents 10 per cent of the vote cast at the governor's election of Nov. 4, 1958.

City Freeway To Cut Swath In Properties

ties. Both the officials of the church and the owners of the ceramic plant have been advised officially their buildings are to be acquired, but in neither case has the negotiations for sale been completed.

Anderson church officials hope to rebuild, probably in the same neighborhood, but they said the questions of the type of structure and its location must wait until a price is agreed upon with the state. The state's offer of $40,000 for the brick building represents only about a third of its replacement value, they said.

THE CHURCH HAS about 170 members, but the homes of 23 will be eliminated in the freeway project. The Rev. George H. Johnston of Wellsville, pastor, also pointed out the new road will "divide" the congregation, as it centers in the Dresden Ave. area and on the hillside area around W. 9th and Lisbon Sts.

When the freeway bisects West End, access to the site of the present church from the Dresden Ave. area will be very difficult, Rev. Johnston said.

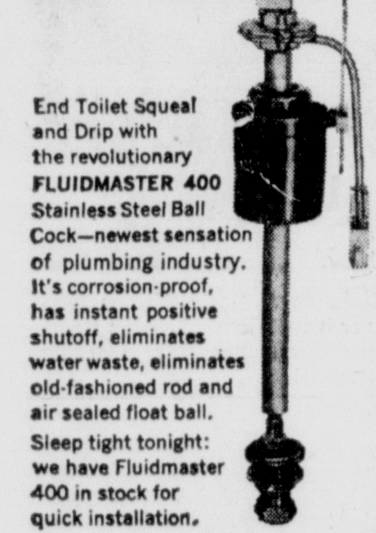

He explained he understands the church took its name from a Bishop Anderson, who was widely known in the Methodist Church at the time the building was erected.

Rev. Johnston said the state's $40,000 offer has been refused and church officials are awaiting new developments.

Ceramic Specialties occupies a three-story brick building of about 42,000 square feet at the foot of the small bluff on which City Hospital stands. Charles E. McBride, president, said the company has received official word that the plant must be razed and three teams of appraisers have looked over the property.

"BUT THEY'VE never been here to talk business" over a price, he added. The company is

Gen. F. D. Atkinson, 55, Ends 30 Years In Army

Brig. Gen. Frederick D. Atkinson, son of Mrs. Flora G. Atkinson and the late Charles S. Atkinson of New Cumberland, retired today from the Army after more than 30 years service.

He was honored Friday in special ceremonies at Ft. Eustis, Va., which included a garrison review. Born in the Hancock County seat, he was a teacher in New Cumberland High School and later served on the faculty at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, where he was graduated in 1930.

He was commandant of the Army Transportation School at Ft. Eustis at the time of his retirement. He assumed command of the post last August, commanding more than 1,800 military and civilian personnel.

He also was graduated from Washington & Jefferson College. He was commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Field Artillery after leaving West Point.

During his career in the Army, he served extensively with the Far East Command in the Philippines, Japan and Korea. He received his promotion as a general officer upon his assignment to Europe in 1956.

During his retirement, Gen. Atkinson said he will go into the waiting word before it decides upon a new location.

"We figure we will have to build a new plant and kiln," he said. The firm employs 70 to 80 on an average, making electric porcelain insulators, pole line insulators and specialties for such concerns as Westinghouse and General Electric.

At its peak in World War II, the company employed 193. In business at the same spot for 28 years, it occupies a plant that formerly was used by the Peach Porcelain Co. Predecessor of Peach was the old Adamant Porcelain Co. The adjoining plant of the old West End Pottery Co. was torn down about 10 years ago to make way for the East Liverpool-Wellsville "super-road."

The centerline of the new freeway at the point where it crosses the "super-road" will be just west of McBride's. The centerline will cross through a vacant tract that formerly was operated as a used car lot, fronting on W. 8th St. at Lisbon St.

AT ITS POINT of beginning at the north city limits in California Hollow, the freeway right-of-way will take out the Buchheit trailer and cabin court. As it moves toward West End, it will roughly follow the present course of Carpenters Run, which means the present Route 30 and Dresden Ave. through that stretch will be left intact and few properties that about them will be affected.

The freeway right-of-way will take the rear 37 feet off the Duquesne Distributing Co. warehouse at 1911 Dresden and also will bisect the adjoining Cochran Amoco Service Station.

In that area, Carpenters Run will be moved to a new open channel closer to present Route 30 and the new highway will go over the present course of the run.

Starting at a point at the upper end of the Loblaw Market lot, the run will be enclosed in pipe, which will extend to the existing field of education. Before teaching, he will do advanced study at George Washington University in Washington.

He is married to the former Clara Perry of Hawaii. They have a daughter, Elizabeth Ann, 17, a freshman at Bucknell University.

stone quarry culvert. Following the culvert in its present course, it then will go to an altered, paved channel and then under W. 9th St. and cross W. 4th St. Ext. at a point about 100 feet from where the present culvert crosses.

BUSINESSES affected in the immediate West End area are the Riddle Grocery in a brick building at W. 9th and Chestnut Sts., the Goppert Grocery nearby on W. 9th and the Atlantic Service on W. 8th St. opposite Chestnut St. A Standard Oil Co. station on W. 8th near Jefferson will not be affected.

However, the right-of-way will take all of the property of the Caplan Junk Yard on W. 8th St., except for a brick office building, which fronts on Jefferson. In the area around the Ohio end of the Newell Bridge, the highway will wipe out the Bertram Lumber Yard and the Bertram Iron & Steel Co., including a two-story garage and warehouse building, and Ken Buckley Cartage, a trucking concern, and the building it occupies.

Much of the property in the immediate W. 8th St. area is affected by four ramps that will lead on and off the freeway, rather than the highway itself. For instance, a ramp will eliminate the vacant lot at the west end of W. 6th St., former site of the 6th St. School, on which City Hospital expected to build a new nurses' home.

AT THE POINT where the freeway crosses W. 8th St., it will be 6 lanes wide, with the two extra lanes provided for traffic moving on and off ramps and accelerating or decelerating accordingly.

The Anderson church is affected by a so-called W. 9th St. Exit, not the highway proper. When the freeway is built, W. 9th will dead-end in a big "turnaround" at McDonald St.

To provide access to the property that will remain on W. 9th St., the "exit" will be built in a big, easy loop to connect W. 9th with the lower section of Lisbon St. The present W. 9th St.-Lisbon St. intersection also will remain in use.

When it developed that the plans prepared by Michael Baker Jr., Inc., at Rochester, consulting engineers, called for elimination of the church, City Engineer George S. Bloomgren asked for new studies to determine if the structure might be saved.

HE PROPOSED widening the present W. 9th-Lisbon St. intersection into an easy turn by cutting into the hillside above W. 9th. But the engineering concern vetoed the suggestion, declaring the cut into the hill would leave the area subject to landslides. And a landslide would cut off the W. 9th St. area completely if it blocked the only access, the concern said.

W. 9th and Lisbon meet in a sharp V. At present, a driver up-bound on Lisbon St. generally must back his car at least once to negotiate the turn. The turn is almost out of the question for a motorist wanting to turn off W. 9th and go downgrade on Lisbon.

The cut into the hillside Bloomgren proposed was to widen the intersection and make the turn comparatively easy.

The highway construction also will require a new support under the Ohio end of the Newell Bridge, as the present support lies within the construction area. A temporary support will be built to allow removal of the existing girders, then the new support will be erected.

THE FACT ONE of the homes being acquired for the right-of-way sits directly underneath the bridge poses another problem for the state's negotiators. They contend that the building sits entirely on the city street and that the state, therefore, need not pay the owner for the ground. That question still is being debated.

In its path through the lower end of California Hollow, the freeway will take a section of the old stone quarry, now owned by the Stover - Leslie Flying Service. The upper end of Chestnut St. virtually is in the center of the right-of-way. The outer limits of the construction will go almost to Clairborne St. on one side—taking the rear of some of the properties. In the opposite direction, it falls just short of Hazel St., the last habitable street on the bluff below Pleasant Heights.

Continuing on Chestnut and McDonald Sts., the highway will take the front half of the lots between Chestnut and Middle Alley. The front sections of the properties—including the homes—will be acquired for highway purposes, but the rear half of each lot will be left undisturbed. In several cases, houses are being razed, but the garage on the rear of the property will stand intact.

ON THE SOUTH SIDE of W. 4th St. between Monroe St. and West Alley, a total of 11 properties will be affected. On W. 4th near Monroe, the acquisition will end with the Lawrence Creel home, allowing the Hilda Richmond and Shelton Sowards properties to stand.

The end of right-of-way acquisition is on W. 3rd St., just west of Perisimmon Alley.

The freeway will end at the north city limits. There it will link with another four-lane road to be constructed some time later—the first stage of an Ohio River - Lake Erie Freeway. The first stage of the lake-river road will stretch from the city limits northwest to a point about where the Y. & O. Rd. intersects Route 30.

Because the city stretch will be completed about the time work begins on the first stage of the lake-river road, a temporary connection between present Route 30 and the freeway will be provided at a point near Loblaw's Market.

That means the section of the city freeway between Loblaw's and the city limits will go unused—except possibly for children on roller skates—until the lake-river section is built.

9 Adults, 10 Juveniles Cited In Beer Violation

Everyone who was in the truck stop earlier in the evening and after midnight when the officers arrived were cited. Further questioning will determine what adults actually were involved.

"Pretty cool—the way the Gas Company advances money for GAS Air Conditioning"

- Casper No bones about it, were there? The Gas Company handled all the financing, including installation. And the low monthly installments can be paid with our Gas bills.
- George: No wonder so many people are installing GAS Central Air Conditioning.
- Casper: Sure. And there are two GAS Air-Conditioning systems available. There's the Arkla-Servel Single Unit that both heats and cools and the new Bryant Add-On that connects to GAS Forced Air Heating Systems.
- George: Sure is nice.
- Casper: You should hear what people who have GAS Central Air Conditioning say about it! Everyone sleeps better. The whole family stays home more. They spend a lot less for recreation, cleaning and laundry, too.
- George: I'll be doggone.

Your Gas Company sells, supervises installations, guarantees satisfaction and finances GAS Air-Conditioning Systems.

The Best Place to Buy After All

The Only Real Revolution

Both presidential campaigns will try to blast the United States off dead-center in the 20th century war of words.

Vice President Nixon has spelled out his intentions. Sen. Kennedy can be expected to spell out his, just as clearly.

Here is one point on which there can be automatic bipartisan agreement. Both candidates want to rescue the country from endless rebuttal of Communist declarations.

The United States has been kept on the defensive in the war of words by the Kremlin strategy of attack. It has been like a baseball team unable to come to bat because it couldn't get the other side out.

Its attempts to bear down harder were subject to opposition by Americans, themselves, moreover. It is one of the murkier passages of newspaper attitude toward government that the U.S. press opposed development of an overseas information service, contending that this was a function of free press enterprise.

There still is nothing being done by this country of really significant strength and size. The battlefield for men's minds has been left largely to the shock troops of the Communist party, who range freely up and down its length proclaiming they are the agents of modern revolution.

THE TRUTH IS they are the agents of the modern counter-revolution, which seeks to offset the only real revolution of the Christian era—the one crystallized by the American Declaration of Independence.

From 1776 on, despotism was kept on the defensive by the radicals of America, France and Britain, who preached that governments were made to serve men, not men to serve governments.

This was the great break in the tradition of government by arrogation and assumption—the underlying philosophy of all the authoritarian systems.

It proclaimed that men were more important than the states that gave them national identification; that their dignity was more important than the dignity of the public officials they had hired to serve them and hence, could fire whenever they felt like it.

TO THIS DAY, nothing has shattered the composure of despots and would-be despots like the release of human individualism. It is the one thing every despot fears. It is the one right that must be resisted above all others.

It is the reason for the Iron Curtain that kept Russians from the world so long. It is the reason for Russia's unrelenting campaign to belittle and besmirch the United States.

The real revolution of the era still boils and explodes in the minds of men who wonder what it would be like to be free—not to tremble when government beckons—not to exist at the mercy of an anonymous bureaucrat who has arrogated the right to give life-and-death orders.

Strange is the fact so many people outside America are more impressed with this than Americans, themselves.

Thus, the first task in making the American revolution dynamic again will be to make Americans understand their heritage of revolution—and that is certain to be a central theme of the 1960 presidential election.

The World Is Much With Us

In the lull between the last convention speech and the first campaign speech, it is possible to remember an old-fashioned idea of America's role in the world.

Its disciples called it "nonintervention." Its opponents used a harsh word — "isolation."

Neither word is heard now. "Noninterventionists" and "isolationists" have fallen silent, lest they be pointed out as relics of the past. They do not want to embarrass new leaders who are proceeding on the assumption that the United States is the guardian of the world and the world is waiting for the United States to show it how to save itself from the Communist conspiracy.

In the 1960 national campaign, the apparent strategy is for both parties to run against Chairman Khrushchev of the Soviet Union, instead of against each other, with voters making their choice on the basis of which party could pull the chairman and his conspirators up shorter.

This is nothing new, of course, and neither is it anything questionable, because international communism vs. the worldwide desire to offset it with international freedom for the rights of individuals is clearly the great issue of the 20th century.

But in this lull between conventioning and campaigning, it is possible to think about the implications of the issue.

BOTH PARTIES now embrace intervention. Neither party is expecting to make further political use of isolationism, which once had a strong political pull based on the psychology that causes most people to mistrust the consequences of intervention.

There is the threat of international communism; it cannot be ignored. But the question of the 1960 campaign may become whether the threat safely can be distorted, as it will be by campaign orators.

The Once Over

Ima Dodo thinks Eleanor Roosevelt and Ex-Gov. Lehman wrote, "May This House Be Safe From Tigers."

Jack Kennedy has named to his staff William Battle, commander of the PT boat which rescued him from death in Pacific. If it's the desperate fight most people expect, no better man could be kept close at hand. Wonder what Mr. Battle thinks of as he recalls the dark and bloody night when the Japs cut Kennedy's PT craft in half and left Jack close to death by drowning. He probably never dreamt that he was rescuing a future candidate for presidency of the United States, and in a way switching the fight from the Pacific to the Potomac.

Bill Fugazy says he favors Los Angeles for return of the heavy weight fight because the weather in New York is too fickle in November. (Yeah, and the chances of a ring-side seat buyer getting the seat to which he is entitled are far too cold.)

DuPont broke all sales records for the first half of 1960, but made less money. Probably had to spend too much money for aspirin tablets in its struggle to get a break from Justice Department.

The Power Of Faith

As soon as he could read, Anthony Ashley Cooper was given a Bible. He read it thoroughly. By the time he was 12, this titled English lad had dedicated his life to ease the suffering of humanity.

With the motto, "Do right whatever may come of it," he became a member of the British Parliament in 1826 at a time when working people, including child laborers, lived a life little removed from slavery.

As Lord Shaftesbury, he fathered the Factory Act which limited the working hours of women and children. The act later became the basis for similar legislation in many other countries.

In and out of Parliament, he constantly fought for better conditions for miners, flower girls, people of the shops, chimney sweeps and even donkeys, who, thanks to his efforts, no longer were beaten with impunity by their owners.

"I think," Lord Shaftesbury wrote, "a man's religion, if it is worth anything, should enter into every sphere of life and rule his conduct in every relation."

Grass Roots Labor-Industry Talks Urged

By Victor Riesel

They are sometimes blocked by their superiors, who are still bitter about union organization and have lingering hopes of somehow weakening unions to impotent shadows of their present selves. Such employers are relatively few but are powerful.

SO WE FIND our nation's labor-management set-up in not only an unhappy but an unfortunate stance to meet the truly great challenges of our time. To name but a few:

1. The missile and military challenge of the Soviet bloc.
2. Foreign economic competition.
3. Domestic economic growth necessary to absorb the "population explosion" of the war years and strengthen our position against the above challenges.

There is ample evidence that the thinking leaders in government, industry and labor are worried about the situation and would like to do something about it.

George Meany's request for a summit meeting of labor and management was a solid step in the right direction but whether the postponed meeting will be productive is still a moot question. This is unfortunate because time is being lost.

In an atomic-missile age we cannot make up for lost time.

WHY NOT START the Meany idea at the community level between local business and labor leaders. The purpose — to discuss all of the problems facing both sides in the future — but discussed in an atmosphere away from the bargaining table and in-between the contract period. From the community level, to the state level — and then on to the national level.

We believe that success at the grass roots will carry the impact upward in the labor movement with greater vigor than the other way around.

But before any success can be achieved at any plateau, we must have an honest attempt by both labor and management to forget their past differences and to try to understand each other better and not approach every problem at arm's length and with mutual suspicion.

A Sick, Sick Nation

By Lynn Heinzerling

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—The United Nations has the sickest nation it has ever nursed on its hands today.

Just a month old, the Congo is facing a crisis which, without prompt remedial action, could cripple it permanently or even snuff out the remaining signs of life.

Born without proper prenatal care and abandoned by its sponsors after great provocation, it can only survive and prosper through a massive effort by the U.N. or individual countries.

The crisis will be reached in August.

The Congo was a Belgian colony which lived richly on cheap African labor, Belgian brains and money, vast mineral resources and great coffee, palm oil and rubber plantations.

The Belgian know-how has now largely disappeared because of the panic that followed the crude attempts of the Congolese to assert their new authority.

More than 60 per cent of the country's revenue came from the copper mining province of Katanga, which now wants to be independent or at least reduce the cur of the central government on its profits.

This year's budget for the Congo amounted to 290 million dollars.

Under the Belgians, the Katanga met its expenses out of the huge tax revenues from the mining companies, principally the Great

The GOP Transformation

By David Lawrence

Four Points Are Recalled At Convention

CHICAGO — The Republicans came here depressed in mind, but they went away confident and invigorated.

They had felt the impact of the Kennedy - Johnson nominations at Los Angeles and wondered how their own convention would go.

There were signs of friction, of dissension and discord which indicated serious trouble ahead. The delegates frankly were puzzled by the tactics of Gov. Rockefeller and his following. They wondered about the extreme conservatives, too.

But in the end all was harmony and, when the Nixon-Lodge ticket was chosen, the convention was happy and plainly stimulated. The delegates began to reflect to each other a feeling of victory ahead and talked as if they sincerely believe it is coming.

WHAT BROUGHT the transformation?

First of all, the skillful handling by Nixon of the Rockefeller pressure for changes in the platform.

Secondly, there was the strong keynote speech made by Rep. Judd of Minnesota—a classic in political rebuttal.

Thirdly, there were the masterful speeches of acceptance by Nixon and Lodge, which electrified the delegates.

And finally must be added the poise and sheer weight of the influence of President Dwight Eisenhower. Anyone who underestimates his prestige today is making an error in appraisal.

BROADLY SPEAKING, the Republican convention was different from the Democratic conclave in many respects.

Here they long ago knew who the nominee would be. Energies, therefore, were concentrated on strategy for the convention.

To see a son of the late Sen. Taft and a son of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt each rising to second the nomination of Nixon, followed by a speech for him by Sen. Goldwater of Arizona, an ultraconservative — these were indications that there had been a natural difference in viewpoints on some complex questions but not a fatal one.

As for the circumstance whereby Gov. Rockefeller came to the stage to introduce Nixon just before he delivered his acceptance speech, this was a master stroke in harmonizing.

THE TRUTH IS the New York governor means to go all out now to help the Republican ticket. His tactics have been designed to imprint his influence on his party, and he did so in the convention.

But what some of the critics of the New York governor may not have known was that he is a loyal party man and not the kind who would play rebel or insurgent to the detriment of his own party's fortunes in the campaign itself.

He, too, will need the combined strength of all elements in the Republican party in New York state to win re-election as governor in 1962.

Fundamentally, there is a difference between the leadership of the two parties today. The two platforms reveal it.

The Democrats are committed to economic programs in which artificial stimulus plays a vital part.

The Republicans are committed to natural growth within the free enterprise system. They believe in the federal government's intervention in the economic life of the country only when emergencies demand it.

THE REPUBLICAN creed is to use governmental aid as little as possible but to use it unhesitatingly when private enterprise temporarily cannot do the job either because of lack of funds or productive capacity.

Back in the minds of the Republican strategists is the belief that the so-called "liberals" behind Sen. Kennedy are headed for state socialism and an all-powerful central government.

The talk of "growth" and the high-sounding phrases about "national purpose" are attractive in themselves, but the business world naturally wonders how these objectives are going to be attained and whether Nikita Khrushchev's prophecy of state socialism for America in the coming years is really going to be fulfilled all too soon by a generation of New Dealers once more in power in Washington.

AS FOR THE "challenges" in the world so often referred to by the critics—especially those who claim Russia is making "progress" in Latin America, Asia and Africa—the answer usually offered in that America must spend more money than she can afford.

For surely the United States cannot resort to the brutal tactics of infiltration in other countries through intrigue and conspiracy.

Plainly this country cannot go to war with Russia just because the Soviet Union increases its hold on some countries outside the present Communist bloc.

Do the demands for "more American action" mean war? This is something the Republican leaders—their candidates and their following in Congress—are absolutely determined to prevent.

That's what this Republican convention really signifies in a broad sense, as it emerges confident that it will receive public support in maintaining the private enterprise system and in avoiding American involvement in war.

The Republican Summit

By Raymond Moley

As we look back at the recent Chicago convention, two unusual features stand out as particularly important.

The President made what was no doubt the finest speech of his career. His party now has at least one half of its ammunition for the campaign—a text for the defense of the Republican administration's accomplishments in its two terms in the White House.

The other half must be supplied by the candidate, Vice President Nixon, when he elaborates the promises for the future.

All the rest of the convention proceedings were foreordained and unexciting, with the exception of Sen. Goldwater's fine exposition of the views of the conservatives in the GOP.

THE PLATFORM is excessively long. Few will ever read it, and it will be soon forgotten.

The vice president's bold stroke in creating an accord with Gov. Rockefeller was made because of the demands of political expediency.

It was Nixon's conviction that the nomination of Sen. Johnson for vice president on the Democratic ticket made the carrying of a sizable number of southern states less likely.

Therefore, as a candidate he would have to intensify his effort to win northern industrial states.

He no doubt realized that Rockefeller's help in New York would not assure him the electoral votes of that state. But an unhappy and rebellious Rockefeller would make it much more difficult for any Republican to carry New York and the Northeast.

A careful examination of the terms of the Nixon-Rockefeller agreement fails to show that Nixon was persuaded to go "liberal."

The statement, so far as it departed from the more conservative opinions in the Republican party is concerned, was merely a reaffirmation of the basic convictions held by the vice president long before the convention.

It was Rockefeller who gave up most of his pre-convention platform. The statement clearly indicates that Rockefeller's widely advertised claim that he and Nixon were in fundamental disagreement was overexaggerated.

Consider what they said about four of the alleged earlier points of disagreement.

Nixon has always by conviction been for strong civil rights legislation and action by the federal government. I happen to be among those who believe it is wrong to attempt by federal action to force a mingling of the races faster than the reasonable and knowledgeable people in the South deem wise.

So far as national defense is concerned, Rockefeller dropped his demand for a rise in expenditures and in the statement merely underlined steps which the Eisenhower administration is taking in any event.

ON THE SUBJECT of national growth and the methods to be employed to achieve it, the statement is about the same as Nixon has been suggesting for a considerable time.

The most doubtful item is on agriculture. Here they say they favor at least doubling the conservation reserve.

If this means doubling the soil bank—a step which Nixon has been considering for a long time—it means throwing twice as much money as before into an experiment which has been a complete failure.

This may get some farmers' votes but it is going to frighten everyone who fears greater spending and inflation. The solution of the farm problem will require something more imaginative than much more of the same.

It is fortunate for conservatives everywhere that they have in Sen. Goldwater the most attractive, intelligent, and articulate spokesman for sound government in many years.

He will be a powerful influence in Congress and the country to see that the more extravagant promises of the platform and the candidates are not enacted into the law of the land.

Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter was born in Austria.

Mixed Trash, Garbage Result In New Warning

Kinnon issued a new warning today to householders against mixing garbage and refuse in the same container.

Refuse and garbage may be kept separately and the trash must be put at the property line on the proper day for the semi-monthly collection, McKinnon said. Garbage must be well-wrapped and in a container with a water-tight lid, he added.

McKinnon said a few householders continue to use oversize containers for trash, rather than the standard 20-gallon garbage can specified by the city. The larger containers hold loads that are impossible for a single man to lift to empty, he said. The city has campaigned for more than 10 years against the oversize containers.

Confident Living

By Norman Vincent Peale

Happiness Is Yours If You Cultivate It

Do you want to be happy? Of course you do. Who doesn't. Here then is one important thing to know: Happiness depends mainly on the kind of thoughts we think.

All of us have the capacity to be happy, but we must discipline our thinking to attain it. We have to lift our own spirits. Once we realize this fact, and put it to work, we can have much more happiness. Some people actually spend whole days brooding over disappointments, supposed disadvantages and grievances; pitying themselves; thinking how tough life is. This dismal thinking, of course, establishes more deeply the feeling of unhappiness.

On the other hand, there are people who have plenty of problems and yet by their attitude of mind positively generate happiness.

NOT LONG AGO I stayed overnight in the home of a friend in a western city. Before going to bed he asked me how early I wanted to be up the next morning. "Well, I have to catch a nine o'clock plane," I replied, "so I'd better be up at seven. That's my usual rising hour anyway."

"I always get going at six-thirty," he declared. "How come you're so lazy?"

"All right, I'd just as soon get up at six-thirty, too. But I haven't an alarm clock. Will you wake me?"

"Don't worry," he assured me. "I will be up and I'll wake you. Go to sleep in confidence. Next thing I knew I was roused from blissful slumber by the noise of my friend's voice outside my door. (That is just what it was: noise — although afterwards he insisted it was singing.) And the words he was shouting were, "Oh, what a beautiful morning..."

"Okay, okay," I implored him. "I'm awake. Quiet down!"

"It's a great day," he said. "Get up and get at it. God's in the heaven — All's right with the world." And off he went down the hall, still singing "Oh, what a beautiful morning..."

SLEEPILY I looked out the window. It was raining pitchforks.

In a few minutes I heard my friend calling from downstairs. "Hurry up and get down here. We have a wonderful breakfast for you." So I hurried and got there, and we sat down to breakfast.

There were six of us. From the head of the table my host beamed at me and asked, "How are you, old boy?"

"Oh, I'm fine," I said. "How could I be otherwise around you?" He then proceeded to ask each of us in turn, "What do you have to thank God for this morning?" When he asked his wife this question she looked tenderly at him and answered, "I thank God for you."

Thereupon he rose and went around the table to her and gave her a big kiss on the cheek. By this time his enthusiasm had so transmitted itself to me that I too got up and kissed the lady on the cheek.

My friend then quoted some inspiring passages from the Bible and ended with an impromptu discourse on the wonders and opportunities of a new day. I looked out the windows to the raindrops lying heavy on the shrubs, and the atmosphere was so happy in that house it seemed to me every raindrop reflected the glory of God.

I HAVE KNOWN this man for years. He has had plenty of problems and trouble in his life. But even so somewhere along the line he learned how to be happy.

He says his mother used to tell him, "You will never be any happier than you let God make you."

He adds that he was a long time coming to the realization that he could take his own life in hand and make himself a happy man.

Aeschylus, first of the great ancient Greek dramatists whose plays are still performed today, declares, "Happiness comes from the health of the soul." What does that mean? Well, soul health involves goodwill instead of hate, outgoingness instead of selfishness, and faith instead of doubt. To be happy it is quite important to get the soul in healthy condition.

To have health of soul the practice of joyous daily thanksgiving is most effective, as was demonstrated by my friend on that rainy morning. God can make you happy.

Learn really to appreciate God's world and give thanks daily for your personal blessings. Think happy thoughts and do things that make other people happy. This is a great formula for real happiness, as you will discover by trying it.

Confident Living

By Norman Vincent Peale

Happiness Is Yours If You Cultivate It

Do you want to be happy? Of course you do. Who doesn't. Here then is one important thing to know: Happiness depends mainly on the kind of thoughts we think. All of us have the capacity to be happy, but we must discipline our thinking to attain it. We have to lift our own spirits. Once we realize this fact, and put it to work, we can have much more happiness. Some people actually spend whole days brooding over disappointments, supposed disadvantages and grievances; pitying themselves; thinking how tough life is. This dismal thinking, of course, establishes more deeply the feeling of unhappiness.

On the other hand, there are people who have plenty of problems and yet by their attitude of mind positively generate happiness.

NOT LONG AGO I stayed overnight in the home of a friend in a western city. Before going to bed he asked me how early I wanted to be up the next morning. "Well, I have to catch a nine o'clock plane," I replied. "So I'd better be up at seven. That's my usual rising hour anyway."

"I always get going at six-thirty," he declared. "How come you're so lazy?"

"All right, I'd just as soon get up at six-thirty, too. But I haven't an alarm clock. Will you wake me?"

"Don't worry," he assured me. "I will be up and I'll wake you. Go to sleep in confidence."

So I went to sleep in confidence. Next thing I knew I was roused from blissful slumber by the noise of my friend's voice outside my door. (That is just what it was: noise — although afterwards he insisted it was singing.) And the words he was shouting were, "Oh, what a beautiful morning..."

"Okay, okay," I implored him. "I'm awake. Quiet down!"

"It's a great day," he said. "Get up and get at it. God's in His heaven — All's right with the world." And off he went down the hall, still singing "Oh, what a beautiful morning..."

SLEEPILY I looked out the window. It was raining pitchforks.

In a few minutes I heard my friend calling from downstairs. "Hurry up and get down here. We have a wonderful breakfast for you." So I hurried and got there, and we sat down to breakfast.

There were six of us. From the head of the table my host beamed at me and asked, "How are you, old boy?"

"Oh, I'm fine," I said. "How could I be otherwise around you?"

He then proceeded to ask each of us in turn, "What do you have to thank God for this morning?"

When he asked his wife this question she looked tenderly at him and answered, "I thank God for you."

Thereupon he rose and went around the table to her and gave her a big kiss on the cheek. By this time his enthusiasm had so transmitted itself to me that I too got up and kissed the lady on the cheek.

My friend then quoted some inspiring passages from the Bible and ended with an impromptu discourse on the wonders and opportunities of a new day. I looked out the windows to the raindrops lying heavy on the shrubs, and the atmosphere was so happy in that house it seemed to me every raindrop reflected the glory of God.

I HAVE KNOWN this man for years. He has had plenty of problems and trouble in his life. But even so somewhere along the line he learned how to have happiness. He says his mother used to tell him, "You will never be any happier than you let God make you."

He adds that he was a long time coming to the realization that he could take his own life in hand and make himself a happy man.

Aeschylus, first of the great ancient Greek dramatists whose plays are still performed today, declares, "Happiness comes from the health of the soul." What does that mean? Well, soul health involves goodwill instead of hate, outgoingness instead of selfishness, and faith instead of doubt. To be happy it is quite important to get the soul in healthy condition.

To have health of soul the practice of joyous daily thanksgiving is most effective, as was demonstrated by my friend on that rainy morning. God can make you happy.

Learn really to appreciate God's world and give thanks daily for your personal blessings. Think happy thoughts and do things that make other people happy. This is a great formula for real happiness, as you will discover by trying it.

Rain Or No Rain, Waynesburg Folk Still Whoop It Up

But the closest Waynesburg came to rain was threatening skies throughout the day. Even this hope faded as the evening hours approached. Tradition had it for this year, townspeople realized.

But gloom did not hang over the town. Even as midnight passed and the skies were clear, thousands of people danced in the streets at the annual rain festival.

"Everyone had a good time even though it didn't rain," an observer noted.

Rain Or No Rain, Waynesburg Folk Still Whoop It Up

WAYNESBURG, Pa. (AP) — The skies darkened, but it didn't rain. That was the story Friday in Waynesburg, the southwestern Pennsylvania town where tradition says it rains every July 29.

It was only the 10th time in 85 years that it hasn't rained here on July 29. Rain fell on two communities within 13 miles of Waynesburg, Carmichaels to the east and Blacksburg to the south.

But the closest Waynesburg came to rain was threatening skies throughout the day. Even this hope faded as the evening hours approached. Tradition had it for this year, townspeople realized.

Don't gloom did not hang over the town. Even as midnight passed and the skies were clear, thousands of people danced in the streets at the annual rain festival.

"Everyone had a good time even though it didn't rain," an observer noted.

Dodgers Turn Back Milwaukee To Keep Their Bid Rolling

Washington Continues To Surprise In American League

Pirates Shut Out Cubs; Lead Goes To 3 Games

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Watch out Pittsburgh and Milwaukee—the Dodgers are sniffing that World Series money again and at the rate they've been moving lately, another pennant could fly at the Los Angeles Coliseum in October.

Paced by Stan Williams, their new mound ace, the Dodgers Friday night turned back Milwaukee 7-3 to climb within two games of the second-place Braves. It was their 16th victory in the last 20 games.

Los Angeles remained five games behind the league-leading Pirates who shut out Chicago 4-0 to widen their margin over the Braves to three games. St. Louis' fourth-place Cards remained two games in back of the Dodgers with a 3-0 victory over Philadelphia. San Francisco's fifth-place Giants, a half-game in back of the Cards, nipped Cincinnati 2-1.

New York's Yankees dropped a 5-2 decision to Kansas City but retained their slender percentage lead over the Chicago White Sox who lost to Washington 7-5. Cleveland snapped a five-game losing streak with a 3-1 triumph over Baltimore and Boston blanked Detroit 1-0.

A crowd of 56,648 Coliseum clients saw Williams space 10 Milwaukee hits for his fifth straight victory and his 11th against two defeats. Williams was backed by an 11-hit attack against nemesis Bob Buhl and three relievers that included three safeties apiece by Norm Larker and Joe Pignatano. The Giants managed only four hits but took advantage of three Reds' miscues to score a pair of unearned runs off starter and loser Jay Hook. Mike McCormick gained his 10th victory in 16 decisions.

Ernie Broglio hurled a five-hit shutout and struck out 12 Phillies for his 11th triumph. Cardinal third baseman Kenny Boyer drove in all three Redbirds' runs with a single and double.

Vinegar Bend Mizell pitched a two-hitter to extend the Cubs' losing streak to eight. Don Hoak batted across three Pirate runs, two on a homer.

Stigman Stars In Relief As Indians Win 3 To 1

BALTIMORE (AP)—Dick Stigman apparently is just a "hot water" pitcher and he proved Friday night why Cleveland Manager Joe Gordon likes him as a relief specialist.

Stigman starred in a relief chore as the Indians beat the Baltimore Orioles 3-1 to end a five-game losing streak. Just before the game, Gordon was explaining the young southpaw's new role: "The reason I'm putting Stigman back in the bullpen is so that we'll have a stopper when we need one."

In the seventh inning, Gordon summoned Stigman from the bullpen to protect Jack Harshman's 3-0 lead. Harshman had just walked Ron Hansen, and although he had hurled a two-hitter, he was tiring.

Stigman entered with the count 2-0 on Bob Boyd and walked the batter. Then he gave up a bunt single, and a sacrifice fly to Jackie Brandt. With runners on first and second and two out, Stigman fired a called third strike past Gene Woodling.

In the eighth, Stigman ran into more troubles when he surrendered the seventh off relief hurler Hoyt Wilhelm. Tito Francona walked, moved to second on a sacrifice by Mike de la Hoz and scored on a single by Wilson.

Jim (Mudcat) Grant (6-5) faces the Orioles' Chuck Estrada (10-5) tonight.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP)—A change in city sewer rates will not be up for a vote in this city in the November election. Petitions to put the question of the change on the ballot had insufficient valid signatures, Common Pleas Judge Frank J. Battisti ruled Friday.

Defeats White Sox 7-5; 6½ Out Of First Place

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

In April if any person had predicted that Washington's perennial cellar-dwellers would be over the 500 mark on July 30 he'd have been carted off to the nearest sanitarium.

But today, the Senators were not only playing .505 ball, but actually battling for a spot in the first division, 6½ games out of first place.

The Nats went over the 500 mark for the first time since opening day Friday by defeating the Chicago White Sox 7-5 for their third straight victory. Since July 3, the Nats have won 16 while losing only seven to move to fifth place.

The defeat left the White Sox .004 percentage points behind the New York Yankees, who clung to first place despite a 5-2 defeat by Kansas City. Boston nipped Detroit 1-0 and Cleveland defeated Baltimore 3-1.

Pittsburgh shut out Chicago 4-0 to extend its National League lead to three games over Milwaukee, which bowed to Los Angeles 7-3. San Francisco nipped Cincinnati 2-1 and St. Louis blanked Philadelphia 3-0.

Washington trailing 5-3, rallied for three runs in the seventh and added an insurance run in the eighth.

Rudy Hernandez, third of five Washington pitchers, got credit for the victory. Gerry Staley, in relief, was the loser.

Home runs by Danny Kravitz and Marv Throneberry and six-hit pitching by Ray Herbert gave the Athletics their first victory in Yankee Stadium since June 11, 1959. Kansas City had lost 11 straight in New York.

Ted Williams singled home Don Buddin with two out in the third inning to provide the only run as Boston's Bill Monbouquette won a duel from Detroit's Jim Bunning.

Jack Harshman, making only his second start for Cleveland after being sidelined three months with back trouble, received credit for the victory that snapped the Indians' five-game losing string.

Cleveland scored two runs off loser Jack Fisher in the second on four singles and a sacrifice.

Ind., defeated Bill Nagy Sr., of Cleveland, 6-2, 4-6, 11-9, for the men's seniors title.

Hard-Working Vice President

Nixon Broadens The Role Of Veep

(Under Richard Nixon, the vice presidency underwent a remarkable extension. It was in this office, during the President's illness and as his emissary abroad, that Nixon strove to build an image of responsible statesmanship. This is the last in a series of articles.)

By SAUL PETT
CHICAGO (AP) — Under the Constitution of the United States, the only prescribed duty of the vice president is to preside over the Senate—and, according to an old joke, inquire each morning about the health of the president.

Richard M. Nixon has made much more of the job.

He has proved one of the hardest working vice presidents in history and, according to Dwight D. Eisenhower, no man in the job has had such "careful preparation for the presidency."

He has traveled widely and spectacularly for the President abroad, relieved him of much ceremonial burden at home, served as troubleshooter between Congress and the White House, helped settle the steel strike and, during presidential absences, presided over meetings of the Cabinet and National Security Council.

During President Eisenhower's three illnesses, it was generally agreed, Nixon showed tact and dignity in helping to run the government.

Additionally, in the past four years Nixon has done much to win new friends.

In 1956, he began to soften his campaign tactics and even displayed a fresh charity toward old and new opponents. He found occasions to praise Harry S. Truman's "courage" in sending troops into Korea. Earlier this year he defended his Democratic rival Sen. John F. Kennedy against the charge of being soft on communism.

All these factors help highlight the widely discussed picture of the "new Nixon"—a phrase, incidentally, which the vice president's friends don't take kindly to.

"Of course, he's changed," said his press secretary, Herb G. Klein, during the Republican convention this week. "But to speak of a 'new Nixon' seems to imply he went out to get a new personality like a new suit."

"He didn't. But he has changed since I first met him in 1946. He has grown with experience, maturity and confidence."

Whether this is the "old Nixon" or the "new Nixon" now running for president may prove academic, anyway. Most people see what they want to see.

This, one can reasonably assume, is especially true of the vice president. Almost from the beginning of his career, he has caused a high pitch of emotion, both for and against him. Unlike most vice presidents, who were scarcely seen and rarely heard, this one played the leading role in a long series of highly dramatic scenes.

The last two were clearly his best, politically. They brought him more undiluted praise than anything else in his career.

In the one case, Richard Nixon seemed to be taking it on the chin for all Americans. In the other, witnesses agree, he did well.

He showed courage and control in May 1958 when a Venezuelan mob turned a routine goodwill tour into a nightmare. They attacked the Nixon cars with clubs, pipes, stones and spit. At one point, the howling mob even tried to overturn the vice president's car.

He showed skill and poise in the summer of 1959 in Moscow when Nikita Khrushchev suddenly opened a fantastic running debate. The scene was the U.S. National Exposition in Sokolniki Park, and the whole thing was on television. Khrushchev: "We are telling you not to be afraid of ideas. We have no reason to be afraid."

Nixon: "Well, let's have more exchange of them, then."

Khrushchev: "You Americans think that the Russian people will be astonished to see these things. The fact is that all our new houses have this kind of equipment."

Nixon: "We do not claim to astonish the Russian people. We hope to show our diversity and our right to choose. We do not want to have decisions made at the top by one government official that all houses should be built the same way."

It was a debate heard around the world.

Richard Milhous Nixon had come a long way from Whittier, Calif., to Moscow, Russia.

But it is still a long way to the White House.

$48,000 to insure that schools have enough operating funds.

Allocations of state aid used to be cut when the property assessments were low. One of the arguments used in dropping this method was that it punished the school boards for a situation over which they had no control, since the taxing decisions lay with the assessors and commissioners.

The end of the penalty system means that counties got additional funds this fiscal year they otherwise would have lost.

Whether or not the county may be excused from the new law this year is a question still unanswered. If not, commissioners will be required to allocate to the County Board of Education the $48,000 in tax rates allowed the County Court for its operational expenses.

The assessments include a reduction of $200,000 for the Weirton Steel Co. because of a decrease in sales and inventory. All other industries in the county reported inventory reductions.

Weirton Steel was assessed at $45 million. The Homer Laughlin China Co. in Newell was assessed by Suplee at $940,000, the same as last year.

Here are the assessment figures for the four classes of property and for the city of Chester and the village of New Cumberland with last year's figures in parentheses:

Class I, intangibles, $4,268,483, ($4,224,683); Class II, real estate, owner-occupied, $20,200,260, ($18,962,140); Class III, property, business, industry and houses rented outside municipalities, $9,800,460, ($9,810,750); Class IV, business, industry and houses rented inside municipalities, $71,399,050, ($71,816,300).

Chester — Class I, $1,411,600, ($1,375,100); Class II, $1,804,800, ($1,796,500); Class IV, $2,573,800, ($2,576,550).

The total assessment for Chester is $5,790,200, compared to $5,748,150 last year. The figures show a total increase in assessments in Chester of $42,050.

New Cumberland — Class I, $42,300, ($31,800); Class II, $651,800, ($66,300); Class IV, $1,087,200, ($1,067,700).

New Cumberland's total assessment in property is $1,781,300, an increase of $35,000 over last year's.

Weirton was assessed at $83,751,383, an increase of $511,200.

Pennsylvania Woman Fined On 2 Charges

LISBON — Sally Ann Baker, 24, of Koppel, Pa., was fined $50 and costs for leaving the scene of an accident and $20 and costs for operating her motor vehicle left of center at a hearing Friday before County Judge James L. MacDonald.

Five others forfeited bonds totaling $100. They were:

Ester B. Cox, 25, of Detroit, $25 for no operator's license and $15 for speeding.

Dale O. Cusick, 26, of New Waterford, James W. Uphold, 21, of Akron, Mark C. Arnold, 19, of Stow and Walter S. Popleski, 45, of Cleveland, $15 each for speeding. All were cited by the State Highway Patrol.

invasions of enemy camps that gave the television manipulators the best opportunities for sending some measure of excitement to the home screens.

SO THEY passed by the committed delegates to seek out the centers of controversy, discontent and shift.

This doesn't mean the Ohioans were not in there pitching.

Clues to the truth of that lie in the selection of Gov. Michael V. DiSalle to escort the Democratic nominee to the Los Angeles Coliseum for his acceptance speech; the selection of U.S. Rep. Frances P. Bolton to introduce the Republican keynote; the selection of State Rep. Robert A. Taft Jr. to make one of the seconding speeches for the GOP nominee, and the summoning of State Chairman Ray Bliss and former Sen. John W. Bricker by Vice President Nixon when he wanted to discuss a choice for the vice presidency.

But mostly the Ohio people were doing their work off-screen. The state had its share of important committee assignments at both conventions and Ohioans helped with some of the behind-the-scenes politicking at Los Angeles and Chicago.

IN THE FINAL analysis, things turned out pretty much as expected at the quadrennial conclaves, so the centers of controversy, discontent and shift did not really amount to much after all. The moments of national television glory enjoyed by the dissenting delegations proved to be brief moments, indeed.

For the Ohioans, passed over by the ubiquitous eye of television at the conventions, the greater days of glory are more likely to come in the future.

State Republican and Democratic leaders are sure to play an influential role in bringing Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy into the state during what promises to be the most exciting campaign in years.

And after the contest has been decided, the victor, whoever he is, is not likely to forget that when the chips were down at the convention, the Ohio delegation was with him — and had been all along.

Won't Touch U.S. Base, Castro's Brother Says

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—Cuban Minister of Armed Forces Raul Castro was quoted today as saying, "We are not going to touch the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay at all."

The brother of Prime Minister Fidel Castro was interviewed by the English-language Athens Daily Post during a stopover at the Athens Airport en route home from Cairo.

starting its session early and working into the night.

A reporter told him Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the Republican standard-bearer, has suggested that the Senate refrain from voting on important bills on Saturdays lest it embarrass any nominees.

Johnson replied tartly that he hasn't observed that it has made any difference to Nixon's plans in the past whether the Senate was in session or not. For the forthcoming session, he said, he believes "the people's business comes first."

Wool Funds Total $5,990

LISBON — A total of $5,990 has been paid so far to Columbiana County wool growers in payments earned under the national wool program for the 1959 marketing year, according to L. E. Lora of the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office.

The payments now being made were earned on marketings of wool and unshorn lambs during the year from April 1, 1959, to March 31.

There is a deduction from each grower's payment to provide a fund used in promoting the sale of wool and lamb. This deduction, authorized by growers in a referendum, amounts to one cent a pound for shorn wool and five cents a hundredweight for unshorn lambs.

The wool program, authorized by the National Wool Act, is designed to increase the annual wool output of the United States to a total of 300 million pounds, through incentive payments which bring the average price received by growers for wool to 62 cents per pound.

Payments are now being made on applications received up to May 1. The 1960 marketing year will continue until March 31, 1961, and payments for marketing during that period will be made next summer, Lora said.

Council Bill Sets 2:30 Closing Time At Bowling Alleys

An ordinance moving the closing time for the city's 2 bowling alleys from midnight to 2:30 a. m. is scheduled for City Council action at its first August meeting Monday night at 8.

The amendment was asked several weeks ago by Dale Keddie of Orchard Grove Ave., operator of the Head Pin Bowling Alley, 504-06 Mulberry St. He said keggers who work late night shifts at Midland mills like to bowl after quitting time, but the midnight closing makes it difficult or impossible.

In addition, he argued, the state liquor permit allows operations until 2:30 in the bar which connects with the alleys. He suggested allowing bowling to operate until the same deadline as the bar.

The city's other alleys are at the Don Bus Recreation Club, 421 Walnut St., operated by Harold W. Cartwright.

The present ordinance says bowling alleys may not operate between midnight and 7 a. m. Although the proposed ordinance has not been drafted into final form, it presumably will ban bowling between 2:30 and 7 a. m.

Council also will consider legislation to pay one minor claim against the city. The session will begin with a caucus at 7.

Fireman On Vacation, Naturally, There's Fire

It's getting so that a fireman can't avoid a fire — even when on vacation.

While touring the Southern States recently, Assistant Fire Chief James Pelley and wife and daughter, Marla K., stopped at a motel at Covington, Ga. Naturally, it caught fire!

They and other occupants escaped unharmed as the fire damaged 13 of the 26 units and office of the C-shaped unit. A severe electrical storm preceded the fire and Pelley said the blaze apparently started in the transformer of the motel's neon sign.

Mr. and Mrs. Pelley of N. Surrey Rd., Fisher Park, have returned after an eight-day trip.

2 Boys To Get Awards In Cub 'Fishing Derby'

Two boys won awards in a "fishing derby" held by Cub Pack 34 of the Pennsylvania Ave. Methodist Church Thursday night at an outing in Tomlinson Run State Park near Pughtown.

They are Paul Brunstetter, who caught the largest fish, and Gary Stalter, who landed the smallest. The prizes will be awarded at the next meeting Aug. 25 in the church.

About 35 fathers and sons attended. Louis Jewell, cubmaster, was in charge.

Ponies Saved In Fire

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Farmers saved six valuable ponies from a burning barn on the estates of Dr. John D. Joliet near north Canton Friday shortly before the blazing roof fell in. Dr. Joliet and Joseph Edwards, owners of the barn, estimated damage at $25,000. North Canton's fire chief, Harry Ohler, said spontaneous combustion probably caused the fire.

Lions Told Education Major Remedy In Toll On Highways

Education is the most important means of reducing highway accidents and deaths in the continuing traffic crisis, H. Judson English, director of sales and services for the Columbiana County Motor Club, told the Lions Club Friday afternoon at the Travelers Hotel.

Continuing a series of talks which have been presented to the club on safety, English declared, "We've had a traffic crisis in East Liverpool for a number of years, and it's not getting any better. Despite the census reports, more cars are being driven on city streets than ever before."

As a representative of the club and member of the safety committee of the Chamber of Commerce, English said he was "heartily in favor" of new directional signs on Pennsylvania Ave. to aid motorists.

However, he pointed out "walk" lights are needed for pedestrian safety, pointing out there is not a single intersection in East Liverpool where all traffic is halted for a brief period to allow pedestrians to cross.

"Walk" lights have been discussed by various administrations, he pointed out, but lack of finances generally has halted any attempt to install them.

English pointed out both the proposed city expressway and Lake Erie-Ohio River freeway will be limited access highways and thus will call for an entirely different type of driving.

Limited access highways and turnpikes have been proved to be safer than the old-fashioned roads with uncontrolled access, he said, citing studies made on comparable roads.

County Towns Face Gas Hike

The Ohio Fuel Gas Co. at Columbus has announced that higher cost of natural gas from suppliers will result in increases Sept. 1 in natural gas rates in 97 Ohio communities, including 7 in Columbiana County.

Rates will be increased one cent per 1,000 cubic feet in Hanover, Leetonia, Lisbon, New Waterford, and Washingtonville.

Rates in Columbiana village will be increased 1½ cents a 1,000 under provisions of the fuel cost clause.

A half-cent increase is scheduled in Salem.

Gas rates also increased one cent per 1,000 cubic feet in the Jefferson County communities of Amsterdam and Bergholz, and Carrollton in Carroll County.

The half-cent increase also will apply to 245 large-volume industrial customers having contracts containing fuel cost clauses.

Electric Workers In Brief Walkouts

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Contract negotiation difficulties led to brief walkouts Friday by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers at Ohio Edison Co. installations in five northern Ohio towns.

Also, the union disclosed it has filed charges with the National Labor Relations Board accusing Ohio Edison of refusal to bargain. The IBEW represents 625 employees of Ohio Edison in 10 cities, and the walkouts—which Frank Adams, union international representative, said were unauthorized—affected Sandusky, Port Clinton, Bellevue, Lorain and Elyria. There were no strikes at Massillon, Mansfield, Warren, Marion and Alliance where the IBEW also has members.

The work stoppages did not interrupt operations of Ohio Edison, the state's largest electric utility, serving 2,150,000 customers in 35 counties.

Funeral Services Set

ASHLAND, Ohio (AP) — Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday for Clifford W. Chorpensing, 74, former Ashland County prosecuting attorney and Ashland city police court judge. He died in Samaritan Hospital Friday after a long illness. His wife, two daughters and three sons survive, including Paul, a former Ashland mayor; and Robert, a Lima tire company executive.

HIROSHIMA

15 YEARS LATER

Today, streets such as Kamiya-cho are bordered with modern buildings and carry heavy traffic.

FIFTEEN YEARS ago, on Aug. 6, 1945, an atomic bomb was dropped on Hiroshima.

More than 78,000 persons were killed and 37,000 injured. Some 66,000 wooden homes were incinerated or crushed in the instant of the explosion.

What is this city like today? Is the agony of its tragedy still evident? How are Americans received?

These and other questions welled within us as our train approached the city. Tokyo, 18 hours away by train, was booming. So were other Japanese cities. But none, even Nagasaki, the second A-bombed city, whose hills restricted the explosive force in some sections, had undergone the terrible trauma of Hiroshima.

Despite this, our first hours in the city revealed the miracle. Hiroshima has come back—bravely, quietly, inspiringly.

As in any other Japanese city, we saw squalor and slums. But we also saw a record population of 430,000; a TV station; baseball stadium; modern department stores along with small, lantern-trimmed shops; triple-feature movie theaters; and all-day traffic congestion.

Hiroshima's face, in fact, seems brighter than other cities' which were not so completely rebuilt. It has a striking circular children's library; a new tall-spired Catholic church; a bright new hospital; modern concrete bridges over the rivers; new apartment buildings; and the broadest boulevard in land-starved Japan, 110 yards wide.

Part of the miracle, too, is in the city's soul.

No city, or nation, emerges from the bitterness of war without psychological scars. Hiroshima has these. Yet its experience also has created within its citizens a special quality, a bond which only a shared ordeal such as theirs can forge. Most can talk of that day freely, objectively.

Dr. Fumio Shigeto, director of the Red Cross Hospital, quietly, almost matter-of-factly shows a scrapbook of fogged X-ray plates which revealed to him, before anyone else, the nature of the mystery bomb.

"Our hospital was the only one that survived," he recalls. "For days, the wounded and dying staggered in. It seemed as though we never slept. "But," he added, "that is all behind us now."

BECAUSE more than two million tourists a year visit Hiroshima, souvenir photos and other mementos are hawked freely throughout the city. If there is widespread antipathy toward Americans, it is not evident.

"The war is over," as an executive of the plush New Hiroshima Hotel put it. "Tourists help the city—and Americans, because they have money to spend, help it most."

Informed citizens well recall the helping hand extended—and still being outstretched—by Americans. Hundreds have responded to the appeals of the Rev. Kiyoshi Tanimoto of the United

A year after the atomic blast, a few weeds and board houses sprouted.

On Aug. 6, 1945, we dropped the first atomic bomb on this city; evidence of that horror is still visible—but so is a more sacred side of man's nature

By AL BALK

Church of Christ, whose story was part of John Hersey's famed book "Hiroshima." A significant appeal was his Moral Adoption Project, by which Americans can become long-distance foster parents to orphans in Hiroshima. Another aid, in cooperation with a group in the U.S., was the Hiroshima Maidens' trip to New York for extensive plastic surgery on their burned bodies.

Americans, in fact, find that lasting friendships are readily formed with Hiroshima citizens. My family corresponds with several, and one, a Hiroshima University scientist, whom we knew for only two days, went out of his way to visit us during a trip to the United States.

Hiroshima, however, thinks it would be wrong to forget completely that sunny morning of Aug. 6.

On each anniversary, at the fateful hour of 8:15 a.m., its people throng to a ceremony in Peace Park, which marks the place over which the bomb burst. Here is a saddle-shaped concrete monument containing a crypt with the names of all known victims; a modern museum with photos and other grim reminders of the bombing; and approximately a mile away, the skeleton of the Industrial Promotion Hall, standing as the bomb left it.

"We gather here," one survivor said, "not so much to remind ourselves as the world. If we are remembered, we believe there is a great hope: the hope that there will be no more Hiroshimas, anytime—anywhere."

A Hobby of a Different Color

A foible I'll never comprehend
Is the time and money that people spend
Pursuing the most ridiculous hobbies;
For instance, those dueling swords of Bobby's,
Or the owls and jay birds that Henry stuffs.
But here's what stops me with hobby buffs:
They saddle Old Paint, and yippy-ki-ay!
They rope and tie you for half a day
And bore you blue with their monologues
On basket-weaving or porcelain dogs.

I don't have a hobby myself—or none
Except the bottles, and they're just fun.
Like take that big one there on the shelf:
It belonged to Pancho Villa himself.
And that little blue one shaped like a hat;
Boy, there's a story attached to that . . . etc., etc.

QUIPS AND QUOTES

The little boy and the neighbor girl were sitting in the front seat of the parked car. "Zoom! Zoom!" cried the boy happily, pretending he was wheeling through heavy traffic.

"My goodness," said the little girl. "I didn't know you could drive a car, Jimmy."

"Well, I ought to be able to," the boy replied, "after all the times I've heard Mommy tell Daddy how."
—Ruth Chadwick

"What do you mean, 'Where's the yacht?' You're on it!"

I was just thinking...

ABRUPTLY she raised her head.

"What are you doing?" I asked.

"Listening to the quiet of the night."

"What do you hear?" There was unease in my voice.

"You don't hear anything. You just listen."

We sat there together and all at once I was listening, too, to the hush between yesterday and tomorrow.

Nothing moved. The wind had sighed itself to sleep.

The quiet of the night . . .

The road is seldom still. It undulates with traffic. It is a noisy ribbon of speed and impatience. Tonight it is as soundless as though it had been carpeted with darkness, as though, if a truck thundered its length, there would be utter stillness. Nothing . . .

Nothing but this aching quiet in which the ears strain even for the grating together of the old house's bones, even the startling hoot of an owl or night-flying geese printed in starlight.

I wanted to cough or clear my throat. I wanted to rise to my feet and talk in a loud voice about inconsequential. I did neither of these things. It would have been singing during a sermon or intruding among the angels. It would have been piping the defiance of my existence in the face of the universe.

In the quiet of the night . . .

Sometimes there is a droning lull at noon or silence in the awakening of the dawn. Sometimes stillness clatters as noisily as a stone into the midst of people talking. All these are natural phenomena of being and breathing and time.

The night's quiet is something apart from reality, a cathedral calm, a canopy of soundless space. To defy the giant voice of this mute majesty is to deny heaven itself.

And so we sat and listened and heard nothing. Inside us moved fearful anxiety. Man was made to revel in sound and movement. His fears are conceived in the unknown and borne in silence.

And though he listen until his ears ache, he can hear only the small, timid beating of his heart.

A Hobby of a Different Color

A foible I'll never comprehend
Is the time and money that people spend
Pursuing the most ridiculous hobbies;
For instance, those dueling swords of Bobby's,
Or the owls and jay birds that Henry stuffs.
But here's what stops me with hobby buffs:
They saddle Old Paint, and yippy-ki-ay!
They rope and tie you for half a day
And bore you blue with their monologues
On basket-weaving or porcelain dogs.

I don't have a hobby myself—or none
Except the bottles, and they're just fun.
Like take that big one there on the shelf:
It belonged to Pancho Villa himself.
And that little blue one shaped like a hat;
Boy, there's a story attached to that . . . etc., etc.

—Georgie Starbuck Galbraith

When a man who likes to hunt and fish says he's going to rough it, he probably means he's taking his wife and kids along.

QUIPS AND QUOTES

The little boy and the neighbor girl were sitting in the front seat of the parked car. "Zoom! Zoom!" cried the boy happily, pretending he was wheeling through heavy traffic.

"My goodness," said the little girl. "I didn't know you could drive a car, Jimmy."

"Well, I ought to be able to," the boy replied. "after all the times I've heard Mommy tell Daddy how."

—Ruth Chadwick

"What do you mean, 'Where's the yacht?' You're on it!"

I was just thinking...

ABRUPTLY she raised her head.

"What are you doing?" I asked.

"Listening to the quiet of the night."

"What do you hear?" There was unease in my voice.

"You don't hear anything. You just listen."

We sat there together and all at once I was listening, too, to the hush between yesterday and tomorrow.

Nothing moved. The wind had sighed itself to sleep.

The quiet of the night . . .

The road is seldom still. It undulates with traffic. It is a noisy ribbon of speed and impatience. Tonight it is as soundless as though it had been carpeted with darkness, as though, if a truck thundered its length, there would be utter stillness. Nothing . . .

Nothing but this aching quiet in which the ears strain even for the grating together of the old house's bones, even the startling hoot of an owl or night-flying geese printed in starlight.

I wanted to cough or clear my throat. I wanted to rise to my feet and talk in a loud voice about inconsequential. I did neither of these things. It would have been singing during a sermon or intruding among the angels. It would have been piping the defiance of my existence in the face of the universe.

In the quiet of the night . . .

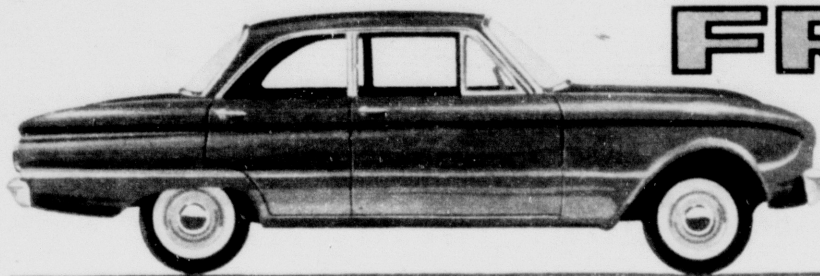

Sometimes there is a droning lull at noon or silence in the awakening of the dawn. Sometimes stillness clatters as noisily as a stone into the midst of people talking. All these are natural phenomena of being and breathing and time.

The night's quiet is something apart from reality, a cathedral calm, a canopy of soundless space. To defy the giant voice of this mute majesty is to deny heaven itself.

And so we sat and listened and heard nothing. Inside us moved fearful anxiety. Man was made to revel in sound and movement. His fears are conceived in the unknown and borne in silence.

And though he listen until his ears ache, he can hear only the small, timid beating of his heart.

Kim Novak and artist Walter Keane (photo on right) sit before their portraits of each other. There's more than meets the eye in Kim's oil painting, however. She completely painted over two earlier versions before she decided it was right. In photo below, she adds finishing touches.

Kim

Her paintings reveal that there is more to this beautiful blonde than meets the eye—namely a talent with the brush few people expect

By BOB DRISCOLL

Playwright Paddy Chayefsky

Novak: artist

IN 1953, at the crest of her popularity, Rita Hayworth stormed out of Columbia Pictures' Studio, leaving them with a bundle of expensive properties they had just bought for her. Whereupon the late Columbia boss, Harry Cohn, bridled, "We don't need her! I'll make a star."

It was the cue for the entrance of Kim Novak into filmdom.

True to his brash promise, Cohn built the unknown model into Hollywood's No. 1 box-office attraction overnight.

During the whirlwind build-up, there was little inclination to study the real Kim. Press agents forged a personality for her in the box-office image of the time: a beautiful, rather vacant blonde, interested mainly in her appearance and her current boy friend. There was no room in this formula image for any sensitivity or individuality that Kim might have had.

This impression was all I had to go on when I interviewed Kim recently for the first time. But as I sat talking to her, I began to feel that there was a depth to this girl that newspaper and magazine stories ignored.

And though the interview was going smoothly enough, I was distracted by her constant doodling on a large pad. Sensing my annoyance, she handed me the pad, saying, "I'm sorry, but I always seem to be sketching at the wrong time."

I was startled to see that she had drawn a surprisingly lifelike charcoal sketch of her great friend, the late Aly Khan. Here was an undiscovered dimension of Kim Novak, and an impressive one!

It took me two more interviews to persuade Kim to release her pictures publicly. "None of my pictures are really finished," she protested. "My oil of artist Walter Keane, who has been my adviser and biggest booster, is the one I'm proudest of, but I'm not completely satisfied with even that one. I'm not trying to be difficult, and I know that I'm far from being a great artist, but what I do draw, I want to be the best I can possibly produce."

She didn't believe me when I told her the paintings didn't need another stroke, but she finally agreed to let FAMILY WEEKLY reproduce them, including a rough sketch of playwright Paddy Chayefsky, whom she characterizes as one of "my favorite people."

Kim feels that her "paintings have been sort of a tranquilizer" since she has become a star. But long before she ever dreamed of Hollywood, painting was her one consuming interest. "When I was a little girl in Chicago," she says, "I was always sketching. I'd sit in the railroad station and draw the faces that interested me. I never cared about doing still lifes."

Kim's talent won her a scholarship to the Chicago Art Institute when she was in the fifth grade, but she never thought of art as a career. "Perhaps it's too close to me, too private and personal," she confesses.

"Anyhow, I could never bring myself to follow a 'school' of art, which seems to be a requisite for making a go of it commercially.

Kim will finish this charcoal sketch of Mom in oils. She hopes to finish by Christmas.

My paintings, as you can see, are completely subjective. 'Impressionistic' is the word for them, I guess.

"I see everyone I paint in a different color, for instance. Can you imagine me accepting a commission for a society portrait and then painting the subject orange because I see him or her that way?"

Kim has worked hard to improve her acting abilities, and her efforts have paid off with each successive film. Her latest, "Strangers When We Meet," is reportedly her best to date. As might be expected, she has approached painting with the same intensity she devotes to films. "Sometimes when I'm between pictures, I start painting early in the morning and don't stop until late at night," she says.

Contrasting with the faultless public image of Kim Novak, movie star, she's really anything but the glamorous film goddess while at work painting. She often works in paint-spattered clothes, never in "what the artist should wear" from a famous fashion house. Yet she might come in from an engagement in one of her best dresses and, if the mood strikes her, start to work at her easel without changing.

Her equipment, while the best, is always scattered haphazardly on a battered old steamer trunk which she's had for years.

And there have been times when she's gone to her hairdressers with vivid streaks of bright blue or orange in her hair. At one time they admonished her politely for being careless with her paints, but now, like everyone else who knows Kim, they realize that no amount of scolding can deter her art.

Kim feels that perhaps there is more of the real Kim Novak in the artist than in the movie actress. "It's only when I'm painting that I feel completely at home," she says. "Anyhow," she joked, "maybe after FAMILY WEEKLY's story, I'll be more famous for my pictures than my pictures."

PSYCHO-THERAPY

A MEDICAL AID FOR YOU?

Here's the what, why, and how-much of a widely misunderstood science

By ARTHUR S. GREEN

PSYCHIATRY has changed and grown in ways that even Sigmund Freud could not predict when he started his revolutionary work more than 75 years ago. With the development of new concepts, general acceptance by doctors, increasing areas of application, and in other ways, psychiatry has become a highly valued specialty of medicine.

In spite of this, many people think of psychiatry in terms of the days when we knew little about the relation of our minds and emotions to healthful living. Insane asylums, overemphasis on sex, astronomical cost of treatment are still some of the connotations of psychiatry to many of us. Often those in need of psychotherapy fail to receive it simply because of frightening associations with the subject, or ignorance of its value.

In an attempt to understand why some people feel as they do about this important subject, I talked to staff members of a number of national organizations interested in mental health. From the information gathered, I framed a series of questions, which I then presented to several psychiatrists. Here are their answers:

Who needs psychotherapy?

People suffering from a bewildering variety of symptoms—organic, emotional, or a combination of both—but all distressing and persistent. Insomnia, excessive anxiety, feelings of tiredness or being run-down are high on the list. These are not the real causes of emotional illness, but they are usually the symptoms. Uncomfortable feelings like these that become intolerable, or behavior that is way out of proportion to reality, usually indicate an underlying emotional disturbance. Often people suffering from emotional illness are not aware of their symptoms.

What is psychotherapy?

It isn't necessarily psychoanalysis "on the couch." Psychoanalysis is a branch of psychiatry utilized almost exclusively for patients with profound emotional disturbances. It is an extended process, often requiring treatment three to five times a week. Fewer people require psychoanalysis compared with those who can profit from psychotherapy.

Psychotherapy uses psychoanalytic principles, and is concerned essentially with relieving distressing symptoms. The patient simply talks about his uncomfortable feelings as freely as possible. The role of the psychiatrist is to help him find more effective methods of coping with the demands of everyday living. Stimulants and tranquilizers are occasionally used, especially when symptoms are intolerable.

What about the psychiatrist?

What is important in the psychiatrist is that he should have subjected himself to self-scrutiny and evaluation so he understands the nature of his own personality. This leaves him with a genuine desire to help the patient as an ally. Occasionally, the psychiatrist is seen by the patient in the role of a significant person, such as a mother or father, and this can be beneficial.

Does a psychiatrist give advice?

The purpose of psychotherapy is to enable the patient to make his own decisions. If a psychiatrist senses that the patient may do something self-destructive, or get into trouble, he will warn him against it or take preventive steps.

When does psychotherapy end?

The duration of treatment depends on many factors; the severity and depth of the problem, the cooperation of the patient, and his environment. Generally, psychotherapy terminates when the goals—mutually arrived at by the psychiatrist and the patient—have been achieved. In most instances, the goal is simply relief from distressing symptoms.

If a person needs psychotherapy, can't a good friend do as much for him as a psychiatrist?

Well-meaning though these people may be, they are usually limited in their ability, because so many emotional disturbances are complex in nature and may be interwoven with physical illness. Being a physician, a psychiatrist can deal with the relationship between psychic and organic illness.

If a psychiatrist is not equipped to treat certain physical illness, then he works in cooperation with other physicians. Psychiatrists also cooperate with professionals whose specialties are allied to psychiatry, such as psychologists, social workers, and clergymen trained in pastoral psychology.

Where can people who need psychotherapy get help?

Doctors refer patients to psychiatrists or patients can seek them out for themselves. The American Psychiatric Association, 1270 Avenue of the Americas, New York 20, N.Y., can recommend a member in most cities. Local chapters of the National Association for Mental Health furnish information about fees, office hours, memberships, and limitation of practice of member psychiatrists. Social agencies can refer people to psychiatrists on their lists.

Is psychotherapy expensive?

The cost of psychotherapy seems expensive because of the duration of treatment. On a minute-per-minute basis, psychiatrists charge no more than other physicians. For those who cannot afford psychotherapy, there are sources of financial help available. Many psychiatric institutions accept outpatient cases free or at reduced rates, as do clinics of leading hospitals. The Federal government has a nationwide program with state vocational agencies that provides financial assistance for people who are vocationally handicapped because of emotional illness. Social-welfare agencies offer psychological counseling services under the supervision of competent psychiatrists at fees the patient can afford.

reunion in august

Family Weekly Cookbook / MELANIE DE PROFT, Food Editor

■ What's more fun than a family get-together! The food's bound to be good with Aunt Hannah bringing her wonderful ham; Grandma, her creamy potato salad; and Cousin Cora, those special green beans. Of course, the young folks will mix and serve the punch, and Mom's planning to bake rolls, toss the salad, and have her Peppermint-Ice Cream Cake ready in the freezer. Sounds like the best reunion ever!

2. Sift flour, baking powder, and salt together.
3. Cream butter and extract together until butter is softened. Add ¾ cup sugar gradually, creaming until fluffy after each addition. Beating only until smooth after each addition, alternately add dry ingredients in thirds, milk in halves to creamed mixture. Finally beat only until smooth (do not overbeat). Blend in ¼ cup of the peppermint candy.
4. Using clean beater, beat egg whites until rounded peaks are formed. Fold into batter. Turn into a buttered and floured 9-in. round layer-cake pan.
5. Bake at 350° F about 30 min., or until cake tester or wooden pick comes out clean when inserted in center of cake. Remove from oven to cooling rack. Cool 10 min. in pan. Remove cake from pan. Cool completely, wrap, and refrigerate or freeze.
6. To assemble cake, remove ice cream from pan, dipping bottom of pan quickly into hot water and inverting onto serving plate. Return to freezer about 15 min. to firm. Spread ice cream with one-half of the Chocolate Fudge Sauce. Top with cake layer. Spread top of cake with remaining sauce. Freeze at least 3 hrs.
7. Beat sugar into whipped cream. Spread whipped cream over sides and top edge of cake. (See photo.) Sprinkle remaining peppermint candy over edge. Freeze. Set out to soften slightly before serving.

16 servings

Chocolate Fudge Sauce—Blend 1 egg, 2 egg yolks, and ¼ cup sugar in top of double boiler. Set over simmering water. Heat until mixture is amber colored. Cream ½ cup butter and 1 teaspoon vanilla extract until softened. Gradually add egg mixture and 3 oz. semisweet chocolate (melted), beating until smooth. Chill.

Rich chocolate and peppermint flavors are subtly blended in Peppermint-Ice Cream Cake.

No jam tastes like the kind you make yourself!

Easy! Thrifty! No failures—and only one-minute boil with Certo or Sure-Jell!

Sure-Jell and Certo are brands of pectin . . . the fruit substance that causes jelling. The amount of pectin in fruits varies—so Sure-Jell or Certo takes the guesswork out of jam and jelly making. Recipes with package and bottle. Products of General Foods.

Recipe: perfect homemade peach jam. Peel, pit and crush 3 lbs. fully ripe peaches. Mix 4 cups prepared fruit in very large saucepan with 1 box powdered Sure-Jell. (Or use liquid Certo—recipe on bottle.) Stir over high heat until mixture comes to hard boil.

Stir in 5 cups sugar at once. Bring to full rolling boil. Boil hard for 1 minute only, stirring constantly. This short boil time means less juice boils away—so you get up to 50% higher yield, and the flavor comes through fresher—with Sure-Jell or Certo!

Remove from heat; alternately stir and skim off foam for 5 min. Ladle quickly into 9 medium glasses. Cover with paraffin. Sure-Jell and Certo are recommended by General Foods Kitchens.

STOP OILY SKIN TO CHECK PIMPLES!

Don't pick, scratch, squeeze or merely "cover them up"

Doctors know that acne or pimples are caused by the germ called the acne bacillus. These germs invade overactive oil glands in the skin, cause blackheads and pus pockets; then your skin "breaks out."

What's needed is (1) to dry up the excessive oil that collects on skin; (2) to destroy acne germs on the skin, and (3) to stop itching and irritation so pimples can heal.

A doctor's formula, liquid Zemo has this effective 3-way action; also keeps skin looking cleaner!

Hearts away!

In the Bag

By Ragna Eskil

The players are divided into groups of 3, 4, or 5, depending on the number present. Each group is given a paper bag containing a half-dozen objects, all different. There may be an empty perfume bottle, a pencil, a flower pot, a paper pad, a package of cookies—anything that happens to be around. Then each group is told to huddle for five minutes while they make up a play or plan a TV commercial, using their sackful of articles for props. Each group presents its "drama" while the others act as audience. This can be a very funny game!

P. T. BARNUM had ushered in the period of high-powered press-agentry many years before, but Philadelphia would have had little of the kind to win attention for the Centennial Exhibition in 1876 if the only monarch in America had not elected to attend.

Pedro II, emperor of Brazil, popularly known as Dom Pedro, had been in the United States before, traveling incognito, or so it was said. He was favorably known in all the Americas for the liberality of his views and many enlightened things he had done for the people of his country.

Dom Pedro came to the Centennial with a large party, including his consort, Dona Thereza, in the three largest battleships in the Brazilian Navy. Philadelphia welcomed him thunderously with booming salvos of cannon, and the skies lighted up with huge gas fixtures.

The part that Dom Pedro was to play in the display of the telephone was the most exciting story that Alexander Graham Bell carried back to his family.

The Exhibition grounds lay along the banks of the Schuylkill River and filled all of the downtown part of Fairmount Park, 450 acres in all. There were 200 buildings, with practically all nations represented. So extensive was the territory for conscientious visitors to cover that it became necessary to construct a miniature railroad of six miles to carry them about the grounds in handsome palace coaches.

The game known as baseball which Abner Doubleday had invented nearly 40 years before seems to have been overlooked, but a series of cricket matches had been arranged.

There was an electrical section, in which the advances in applied science were displayed; all, that is, but the Multiple Telegraph and the telephone of Alexander Graham Bell.

It was his own fault. It could be traced to what everyone save a native of Scotland would call a stubborn streak in young Mr. Bell. At first he had said that he did not want his models displayed while they were still far from perfect. But Mabel Hubbard, to whom he was now formally engaged, had a mind of her own. There was much determined debate and shaking of heads and perhaps a little stamping of feet, but the lady won.

It was so late when she did that the electrical section was filled, and the telephone (certainly the most monumental exhibit in all of those 200 buildings) had to be placed in the Massachusetts Educational Section.

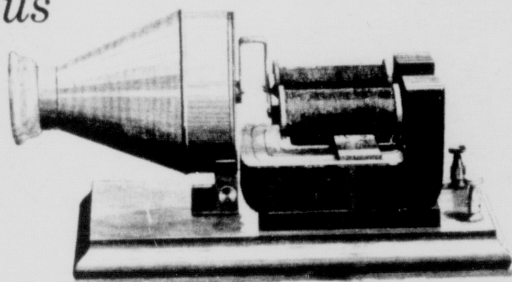

The judging had been set for Sunday, June 25, when the space would be free of noisy spectators. It was stiflingly hot, and the young man from Scotland, who found such weather almost unbearable, stood in the aisle in the East Gallery beside the receiving set which Thomas Watson had arranged, with the transmitter on the other side of the building. He could see that the judges, a group of most distinguished men, including Dom Pedro and the great Englishman, Sir William Thomson (who played a big part in the laying of the Atlantic cable), were feeling as miserable as he was. They were carrying their tall silk hats in their hands and were vigorously applying silk handkerchiefs to their brows.

When they came far enough down the aisle for him to hear what was being said, he realized that they were going to stop before coming to his exhibit.

But the massive figure of the Brazilian monarch did not come to a halt with the rest of the judges. He had caught

MEETS A TEST

A reluctant inventor, a curious emperor, and a generous portion of luck are the ingredients of this momentous incident told by a best-selling author sight of the disconsolate Bell at the end of the aisle and had recognized him. Some few weeks before, he had visited Boston and had talked to the young Scot about his methods of teaching the deaf and the dumb. He walked on, holding out his hand.

Bell decided to do what he could to avert the disaster which loomed ahead for him. He informed the emperor that his exhibit was the next one, and that it was necessary for him to leave the city that evening.

"Then," declared the democratic monarch, "we must have a look at it now."

He took the inventor's arm and walked briskly to where the humble little receiver stood at the end of a seemingly endless line of wire. The other judges followed, without any hint of interest or pleasure in the prospect. But the will of a ruler, especially one of such overpowering personality as the blond-bearded emperor of Brazil, was not to be ignored. The telephone would be inspected after all.

Bell changed places with Willie Hubbard in order to speak himself into the transmitter, on the far side of the room. His voice had never been more resonant as he recited Hamlet's soliloquy.

"To be or not to be . . ." he began. And then he paused, for he could see in the distance that Dom Pedro was pressing the membrane receiver to his ear and stroking his beard at the same time with a puzzled air. Would a voice carry clearly over this long stretch of wire?

HE CONTINUED with the soliloquy, speaking the immortal words with emphasis and firmness. Then he reached a most appropriate line near the close,

"And enterprises of great pith and moment

With this regard their currents turn awry."

He saw that Dom Pedro had straightened up. Had the current turned awry? Would this enterprise prove a failure after all?

It was unfortunate for Bell that he was not close at hand when the mercurial monarch raised himself to his full height and looked about him with eyes which were startled but not incredulous. "A voice was speaking in my ear!" he cried.

It was clear to all about him that Dom Pedro was the most astonished man on the North American continent at that moment. One report has it that he dropped the receiver, exclaiming, "My God, it talks!" So carried away was he by this experience that the other judges evinced a desire to test the strange instrument also. The whole group began to hurry to where Bell was standing beside the transmitter.

THE EXPLANATION that the inventor gave was clear and concise, and all of them, with the possible exception of the emperor, were so well grounded in electrical laws that they could understand. They all had heard a voice whispering in their ears. Although the words spoken had not been loud, they were reasonably clear and understandable.

One doubt lingered in their minds. Had the voice actually traveled through the wire, or was it nothing more than a thread telegraph (sometimes called the lovers telegraph), a device which transmitted sound along a wire mechanically? Would Mr. Bell be good enough to allow them to remove the apparatus to another location, where they could set it up for themselves? He said, "Yes," but that he could not remain to superintend the removal, as he had to return to Boston at once.

The removal was carried out in his absence, and the result was the same. Words passed over the wire from transmitter to receiver, and there was no doubt in the minds of any of the judges that the sounds they heard were produced by electricity.

In due course Alexander Graham Bell received the greatly valued Centennial prize awards for both the Multiple Telegraph and the telephone.

MEETS A TEST

A reluctant inventor, a curious emperor, and a generous portion of luck are the ingredients of this momentous incident told by a best-selling author sight of the disconsolate Bell at the end of the aisle and had recognized him. Some few weeks before, he had visited Boston and had talked to the young Scot about his methods of teaching the deaf and the dumb. He walked on, holding out his hand.

Bell decided to do what he could to avert the disaster which loomed ahead for him. He informed the emperor that his exhibit was the next one, and that it was necessary for him to leave the city that evening.

"Then," declared the democratic monarch, "we must have a look at it now."

He took the inventor's arm and walked briskly to where the humble little receiver stood at the end of a seemingly endless line of wire. The other judges followed, without any hint of interest or pleasure in the prospect. But the will of a ruler, especially one of such overpowering personality as the blond-bearded emperor of Brazil, was not to be ignored. The telephone would be inspected after all.

Bell changed places with Willie Hubbard in order to speak himself into the transmitter, on the far side of the room. His voice had never been more resonant as he recited Hamlet's soliloquy.

"To be or not to be . . ." he began. And then he paused, for he could see in the distance that Dom Pedro was pressing the membrane receiver to his ear and stroking his beard at the same time with a puzzled air. Would a voice carry clearly over this long stretch of wire?

HE CONTINUED with the soliloquy, speaking the immortal words with emphasis and firmness. Then he reached a most appropriate line near the close,

"And enterprises of great pith and moment

With this regard their currents turn awry."

He saw that Dom Pedro had straightened up. Had the current turned awry? Would this enterprise prove a failure after all?

It was unfortunate for Bell that he was not close at hand when the mercurial monarch raised himself to his full height and looked about him with eyes which were startled but not incredulous. "A voice was speaking in my ear!" he cried.

It was clear to all about him that Dom Pedro was the most astonished man on the North American continent at that moment. One report has it that he dropped the receiver, exclaiming, "My God, it talks!" So carried away was he by this experience that the other judges evinced a desire to test the strange instrument also. The whole group began to hurry to where Bell was standing beside the transmitter.

THE EXPLANATION that the inventor gave was clear and concise, and all of them, with the possible exception of the emperor, were so well grounded in electrical laws that they could understand. They all had heard a voice whispering in their ears. Although the words spoken had not been loud, they were reasonably clear and understandable.

One doubt lingered in their minds. Had the voice actually traveled through the wire, or was it nothing more than a thread telegraph (sometimes called the lovers telegraph), a device which transmitted sound along a wire mechanically? Would Mr. Bell be good enough to allow them to remove the apparatus to another location, where they could set it up for themselves? He said, "Yes," but that he could not remain to superintend the removal, as he had to return to Boston at once.

The removal was carried out in his absence, and the result was the same. Words passed over the wire from transmitter to receiver, and there was no doubt in the minds of any of the judges that the sounds they heard were produced by electricity.

In due course Alexander Graham Bell received the greatly valued Centennial prize awards for both the Multiple Telegraph and the telephone.
